I. UNIVERSITY EXTRA-MURAL CLASSES.

(a) SESSIONAL COURSES (24).

Church History: The Brittle Years. (1000). Monday 7.30 to 9 p.m.

Tutor: Canon J. H. Proctor, M.A.

This course will deal with the tremendous changes in the religious outlook of Europe which were initiated by Martin Luther and John Calvin. Special attention will be paid to the Reformation in England and Scotland, and, as far as possible, the subject will be treated biographically. Those who seek to understand the present religious situation need to know the history behind it, and that history begins in the "Brittle Years"—the years when European religious unity was shattered into fragments.

Modern Poetry. (1001). Monday 7.30 to 9 p.m. (beginning Oct. 2nd).

Tutor: F. E. Stalley, B.A.

Although this course will be concerned mainly with modern poetry, many older poems will be examined for purposes of illustration and comparison. An attempt will be made to see contemporary poetry in its setting as part of the living tradition of English verse. The lectures will be concerned chiefly with the work of T. S. Eliot, which will be treated more thoroughly than was possible in last year's "Poetry for Pleasure" course. Other modern poets, however, will also be considered as time allows.

The Welfare State. (1002). Thursday 7.30 to 9 p.m.

Tutor: R. H. B. Condie, M.A.

This course will deal with the growth and development of the Welfare State in Britain, and its impact upon the citizen. Many of the more pressing social, political and economic problems arising out of the increased part played by the State in everyday life will be discussed, including State planning and individual liberty; full employment, incentives and morale in industry; the standard of living and redistribution of the National Income; and whether Britain can afford the Welfare State. An attempt will be made to evaluate some of the more important recent writings on this subject.

Coventry and the West Midlands. (1003). Wednesday 7.30 to 9 p.m.
(beginning September 27th).

Tutor : Miss P. A. Nicklin, M.A.

The purpose of this course will be to examine the characteristics, both natural and human, of the West Midland Region of England, and to survey the stages by which the present relationships between man and the land in town and countryside have evolved. Particular attention will be paid to the role of Coventry as an urban focus of the region both now and formerly, and to the industrial development of Birmingham and the Black Country. Where practicable, field methods will be demonstrated and local problems investigated.

Geology. (1004). Monday 7 to 9 p.m.

Tutor : D. R. Hughes, B.Sc., F.G.S.

A course of lectures and practical work on the following topics :—Physical Geology—the work of rivers, glaciers, the wind, the sea, earthquakes and volcanoes in the evolution of the earth's surface ; Glaciology—the interpretation of glacial and post-glacial deposits and scenery ; Fossils—morphology and evolution of representative families of fossil animals and plants ; Geological Maps—practical study of geological maps ; the history, structure and scenery of selected districts of the British Isles. (See also Course No. 1007).

Local History : Sources and Methods. (1005). Tuesday 7.30 to 9 p.m.

Tutor : E. R. C. Brinkworth, B.Litt., F.R.Hist.S.

The far-reaching importance of local studies is to-day everywhere admitted. This course is intended to give a working knowledge of the basic materials of local history and the methods of using them. The main subjects of study will be the manor, town, parish, county, diocese, monastery and school ; the Civil War ; local industries and businesses ; personal history ; an introduction to palaeography. Visits will be arranged to several of the chief repositories of records in Warwickshire, but while illustrations will thus be drawn from our own local history, it is emphasised that the course is concerned primarily with principles which may be applied to any part of the country.

(b) TERMINAL COURSES.

The British Social Services. (1006). Summer Term, 1951.
Thursday 7.30 to 9 p.m.

Tutor : R. H. B. Condie, M.A.

The years since the end of the Second World War have seen the growth of a system of social security in Britain, unparalleled in any period of time or in any other country. This course of six lectures traces the evolution of the social services from the old Poor Law to the comprehensive provisions of the present. Their success in their primary aim—the abolition of poverty and hardship—is measured against their high cost to the community in taxation.

Geology in the Field. (1007). Summer Term, 1951.

Tutor : D. R. Hughes, B.Sc., F.G.S.

The object of this course will be to study the geology of Warwickshire in the field. Week-end excursions to more distant areas may be possible. Further particulars will be available during the Spring Term, 1951.

Freedom in Education. (1008). Summer Term, 1951.

Tutors : Professor M. V. C. Jeffreys.
W. J. Sparrow, M.A., B.Sc. (Co-Acting-Head of the Education Department, Birmingham University).

This short course of five lectures, of which three will be given by Professor Jeffreys and two by Mr. Sparrow, will be offered during the Summer Term, 1951, and should be of particular interest to teachers. It has been arranged in conjunction with the University of Birmingham Extra-Mural Department and the Institute of Education. Further particulars may be obtained from the Organiser of Liberal Studies during the period January-March, 1951.

II. COLLEGE CLASSES IN PSYCHOLOGY, EDUCATION, POLITICAL THOUGHT AND INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS.

(a) SESSIONAL COURSES (Twenty-four Lectures).

Psychology.

Tutor : D. J. Davies, B.A.

Psychology I. (1010). Friday 7 to 8.30 p.m. (beginning Sept. 29th).

The scope and methods of psychology; psychological development; learning, remembering and thinking; motivation of behaviour; feeling and emotion; knowing our world; individual differences.

Psychology II. (1011). Monday 7.30 to 9 p.m. (beginning Sept. 25th).

This course of twenty-four lecture-discussions will deal with individual and group prejudices in private and in public life. It will examine human behaviour with special reference to the reformer and the delinquent, and will include a psychological analysis of temper and temperament; food faddism; atheism; pacifism; social reform; neurosis; delinquency; the new conception of community; humour.

The Education System. (1012). Monday 6.30 to 7.30 p.m.
(beginning September 25th).

Tutor : D. J. Davies, B.A.

In dealing with education, references are constantly made to the Education Acts 1902-44; the Hadow Report, the Spens Report, etc. This course deals with the more important features of the present education system of England and its development since the beginning of the twentieth century. It is intended not only for teachers and social workers but also for those parents who desire to understand our present system and to be fully aware of the modern trends in educational theory and practice.

The History of Education. (1013). Wednesday 5 to 6 p.m.
(beginning September 27th).

Tutor : D. J. Davies, B.A.

This course will cover the history of education in England since 1800, and will deal with the influence of Comenius, Rousseau, Pestalozzi, Froebel, and others on English education. The chief educational writings of Froebel will be studied in more detail. It is intended primarily for teachers who feel that they can proceed from the study of "teaching methods" to a wider and deeper consideration of the historical development of educational principles and practice; it should also appeal to other persons who are interested in education and general culture.

British Constitution. (1014).

Monday 7 to 8 p.m.

Tutor : K. E. Richardson, M.A.

This course is intended for those who wish to gain a general knowledge of the machinery of British government and how it has developed. It would be useful also for students offering this subject in the General Certificate of Education examination at Advanced Level.

Political Thought. (1015).

Thursday 6.30 to 7.30 p.m.

Tutor : K. E. Richardson, M.A.

This course deals with the origins of political thought with Aristotle and Plato, but concentrating mainly on modern political thought, beginning with Rousseau.

Towards World Order. (1016).

Thursday 7.30 to 9 p.m.

Tutor : T. J. Jones, B.A.

This course, a discussional treatment of social trends, will deal with the historical perspective as well as with contemporary tendencies, and will seek to evaluate present-day experiments. Physical, biogeographical and economic factors will be appraised; and problems of race, language, culture, population, etc., assessed. Social, political and religious aspects will be included as far as practicable. This is a general course, with plenty of opportunity for discussion, for all who are concerned with the welfare not of one State only, but of the World.

(b) TERMINAL COURSES (12 Lectures).

Understanding Ourselves. (1022). Thursday 2 to 3.30 p.m.
(beginning September 28th).

Tutor : D. J. Davies, B.A.

This course of twelve lectures during the Autumn Term combines the findings of psychologists, biologists and sociologists into a pattern of men and women living together, working together and planning together. The problems considered will be those in everyday life. There will be ample opportunity for discussion.

Understanding our Children. (1023). Thursday 2 to 3.30 p.m.
(beginning January 11th).

Tutor : D. J. Davies, B.A.

This course, offered in the Spring Term, deals with the physical and mental development of the child, heredity and environment, the problem child and the problem parent, family relationships and behaviour problems, education, etc. It is intended both for parents and for other persons interested in the education and welfare of children.

III. COLLEGE CLASSES IN ENGLISH, LITERATURE, SPEECH TRAINING, PUBLIC SPEAKING AND DRAMATIC ART.

SESSIONAL COURSES.

An Introduction to Literary Study. (1025). Tuesday 6.30 to 8.30 p.m.

Tutor : A. T. G. Edwards, M.A.

This course of 24 lectures, previously known as "Advanced English", has been specially designed for teachers and older students as a background course. The earlier lectures will deal extensively with language, the medium of literature, and such subjects as the relationship between thought and language and that between writer and reader, imagery, and style will be discussed. The remaining lectures will be devoted to a comprehensive review of the problems involved in a critical appreciation of prose and poetry, the drama, novel, short story, etc.

Public Speaking. (1026). Wednesday 7.30 to 9 p.m.

Tutor : T. J. Jones, B.A.

Speech is an instrument of thought, and free speech is an essential of democracy. The course will, therefore, deal with the importance of language, and the elements of true thinking, as well as with the more specific problems of public speaking, such as speech-architecture, the voice, articulation, gesture and platform deportment, breathing, vocabulary, etc. Chairmanship in differing conditions will receive special attention, and there will be abundant opportunity for practice in debate (formal and informal), extemporaneous speaking, etc., with reference to many of the live issues of the day.

English : Stage I. (1027).

Monday, 6.30 to 8.30 p.m.

English : Stage II. (1028).

Wednesday 6.30 to 8.30 p.m.

English : Stage III. (1029).

Wednesday 6.30 to 8.30 p.m.

This course offers a practical approach to English. The student is given a sound general knowledge of the language and training in comprehension as well as spoken and written expression.

English for Engineers.

First Year : Monday (1030), Tuesday (1031) and Wednesday (1032),
6.30 to 8.30 p.m.
Second Year : Wednesday (1033), Thursday (1034), and Friday (1035),
6.30 to 8.30 p.m.

The Institutions of Civil, Mechanical, and Electrical Engineers hold a Joint Examination in English in April and October each year. This examination, which offers the minimum qualification in English for membership of these Institutions, is open to S.2 students who have pursued a preparatory course in English for two sessions (S.1 and S.2) and who have been recommended for admission to the examination. Students are advised to attend the preparatory course prior to their S.3 year. Further information will be available during the first week of the session, when students should enrol for the appropriate course.

English for Foreign Students.

Elementary (1036) : Thursday 7 to 8.30 p.m.
More Advanced (1037) : Friday 7 to 8.30 p.m.

Classes in English for groups of fifteen or more Foreign Students can also be arranged at hostels and other places in Coventry. Further particulars may be obtained from the Principal.

Speech Training and Elocution.

First Year (1038) : Tuesday 6.30 to 7.30 p.m.
Speech Training : Articulation ; correction of speech faults ; voice production ; modulation ; exercises to cultivate powers of expression and to promote confidence.

Second Year (1039) : Wednesday 6.30 to 7.30 p.m.
Elocution : Practice in verse-speaking, concentrating on the uses of pitch, inflection, quantity, quality, rate, pause, emphasis, etc.

Dramatic Art.

First Year (1040) : Tuesday 7.30 to 8.30 p.m.
Characterisation : movement ; stage technique.

Second Year (1041) : Wednesday 7.30 to 8.30 p.m.
Stage production and acting technique. Suitable students may be selected for presentation of a play to be entered for the Coventry Drama Festival.

English Civil Service. (1042). Tuesday 8 to 9 p.m.

Matriculation and General Certificate of Education.

For particulars of part-time courses in English, History and Geography see Leaflet No. 8.

IV. DEGREE AND DIPLOMA COURSES.

(a) LONDON UNIVERSITY INTERMEDIATE EXAMINATION IN ARTS.

For particulars of full-time and part-time courses see Leaflet No. 8.

(b) SOCIAL STUDIES.

The expansion of the social services creates an increasing demand for persons with a considerable background of knowledge and systematic training, as well as natural aptitude and experience. The aim of the Social Studies course is twofold :—

- (i) To assist students who are preparing for Part I of the University of London Diploma in Social Studies ; and
- (ii) To give those who have experience of welfare work in local government, industry, and voluntary organisations an opportunity of studying the wider field of social work. At the end of each course students may sit the final examinations for Certificates, which will be awarded separately for each subject.

The complete course will be covered in three years. The present course began in September, 1949, and the next enrolment for first year students will be in September, 1951. Intending students for the 1951-54 course should write as soon as possible to the Organiser of Liberal Studies, who will advise them on suitable preparatory studies during the session 1950-51.

TIME TABLE FOR 1950-51.

SECOND YEAR ONLY.

Social History (1050)—Final Session .. Monday 8 to 9 p.m.
Social Administration (1051)—Final Session Monday 7 to 8 p.m.

The College Certificate Examinations in Social History and Social Administration will be held in April, 1951.

Subsidiary Subjects.

Social Philosophy and Psychology (1052) .. Thursday 6.30 to 7.30 p.m.
Social Economics (774) Thursday 7.30 to 8.30 p.m.

In the third year, 1951-52, the course will entail attendance at the College on two evenings a week throughout the winter session to continue studies in Social Economics and Social Philosophy and Psychology. The examinations for the College Certificates in these subjects will be held at the end of the Spring Term, 1952.

Notes :

- (1) Diploma in Social Studies : The examination for the University of London Diploma in Social Studies is open to students who have matriculated. The three-year course in Social Studies, which covers Part I of the examination, demands considerable time for intensive reading in addition to attendance on two evenings at the Technical College. Prospective Diploma students are advised to write immediately to the External Registrar, University of London, Senate House, London, W.C.1., to make arrangements for matriculation, registration etc., for Part I and Part II (practical work) as such arrangements are not covered by enrolment for this course.
- (2) College Certificates in Social Studies : Not all social workers can sit the examination for the University Diploma, and others who desire evidence of systematic and successful study may find the College Certificates useful.
- (3) Examinations are not compulsory.
- (4) Applications from persons over 18 years of age, other than welfare workers, for admission to the course as a whole or on a subject basis will be considered.

Persons interested in the Social Studies course should write as soon as possible to the Principal or the Organiser of Liberal Studies.

(c) COURSES IN EDUCATION, RELIGIOUS KNOWLEDGE, and GEOGRAPHY.

Education.

Teachers who desire to prepare for the University of London examination for the Diploma in Education in 1952 or for the College of Preceptors examinations for A.C.P. and L.C.P. in 1951, are advised to write as soon as possible to the Organiser of Liberal Studies. If there is sufficient demand, a part-time course will be offered. Full particulars can be obtained on request. The following subjects are included in the general programme for 1950-51 :

The Education System (See No. 1012).

The History of Education (See No. 1013).

of from one to two hours' duration.

The provision of special Teachers' classes between 4.30 and 6.30 p.m., or between 6.30 and 8.30 p.m., will be considered if there is adequate demand.

The London University Diploma is of Post-Graduate standing, and to be admitted to the examination graduates must either (a) have had one year's training at an approved training college or department; or (b) have teaching experience after graduation.

The Diplomas of the College of Preceptors (A.C.P.; L.C.P.; F.C.P.) are open to all teachers.

Religious Knowledge. (1064).

Tuesday 5 to 6.30 p.m.

Tutor : The Rev. A. S. Clement, B.A., B.D.

This course is intended primarily for teachers who wish to have an additional qualification for giving Religious Instruction in day schools, but it is open to all interested persons and should be of special value to Sunday-School teachers, lay preachers and other Church workers. It is planned to cover in two years the Syllabus for the University of London Certificate of Proficiency in Religious Knowledge. The subjects of study for the 1950-51 Session will be

- (a) The contents of the Old Testament, including outlines of the history of Israel and its religion.
- (b) Introduction to the Old Testament (Questions of date, composition and authorship, and distinctive ideas.)
- (c) A special study of "Isaiah", chapters 1-39.

Geography.

To be admitted to the External Examination for the University of London Diploma in Geography every student must have matriculated and must have passed either an Intermediate Examination in Geography or the Special Qualifying Examination. Application for exemption from the qualifying examination on account of adequate previous knowledge of Geography would be considered.

- (a) Introductory (Qualifying) Course (See Leaflet 8, Intermediate Geography).

Tutor : F. Dresser, B.A.

- (b) Diploma Course (1065). Saturday 9 to 11 a.m.

Tutor : F. Dresser, B.A.

General and Regional Geography; Physical Basis of Geography; Map Work; A Short Dissertation upon a particular area.

V. COURSE OF INTEREST TO TEACHERS.

The Department of Liberal Studies offers a wide variety of courses of interest to teachers, e.g. :—

- (a) General : English Language and Literature; Geography, including Local Geography; History, including Sources and Methods of Local History; Geology; Religious Knowledge, including Church History; Psychology; Social Studies; British Constitution; Political Thought; etc.

- (b) Certificate and Diploma Courses in Education, Religious Knowledge, Geography, Social Studies, and History.

- (c) Courses leading to Matriculation, General Certificate of Education, and Intermediate Arts (See Leaflet 8).

Note :—As it is possible for students to take one subject only in the General Certificate of Education (Advanced Level), special one-year or two-year classes for teachers in any of the following subjects could be arranged if there is sufficient demand: English Literature; History; Geography. Classes could meet from 5 to 6.30 p.m. or 6.30 to 8.30 p.m. or on Saturday mornings. It would involve attendance for about two hours a week per subject. Students are advised to take only one subject at this level in any one session. Intending students should notify the Principal or the Organiser of Liberal Studies as soon as possible, stating subject or choice of subjects in order of preference, days and times when it would be possible to attend in order of preference, and present qualifications.

Teaching Methods. (1070).

Tuesday 7 to 8.30 p.m.

(beginning September 26th).

Tutors : From the City of Coventry Training College.

Alternative courses (A or B) are offered, formation depending upon demand. Teachers who are interested are invited to notify the Organiser of Liberal Studies as soon as possible of their intention to enrol, stating which course they wish to attend or giving order of preference.

Course A.

To give specific purpose to the studies in teaching methods, a one-year course leading to the National Froebel Certificate has been designed primarily for teachers in Junior Schools.

Course B.

As an alternative scheme, provisional arrangements have been made to offer a more general course of 24 lectures on work in the Junior School, dealing mainly with the basic skills—Arithmetic, Reading, etc., Drama, Geography, History and Local Studies, Nature Study, Activity Work, problems of freedom and control, and visual aids.

VI. MATRICULATION CLASSES (EVENING) : See Leaflet 8.

VII. GENERAL (NON-VOCATIONAL) COURSES.

Courses of a general character for persons of 15-18 years of age, arranged on the general lines envisaged for County Colleges. Attendance is on one day per week, and the curriculum covers social studies, homecrafts, and physical education.

Course A : C.S.1—C.S.3 : English, Mathematics, History, Geography, Citizenship.

C.S.4 : As for other groups, plus French.

Course B : (a) Homecrafts (Cookery, Lingerie), Social Studies and Physical Education.

FOREIGN LANGUAGES.

The aim of the classes in Modern Languages is to teach students to understand, speak, read and write the language in the same way as the educated foreigner. Modern methods of teaching are used, and stress is laid on oral practice. To obtain best results from the course, students should make use of every opportunity of practising the language outside class hours. Foreign books, magazines, and newspapers are useful, and the radio and gramophone are valuable aids to pronunciation and intonation.

The following evening classes are offered:—

Notes to Language Students:—

- (a) Conversation and Reading Classes. Students attending First or Second Year French or German Classes should also join a Conversation Class (one hour), a Reading Class (one hour), or both. The Conversation Class is devoted to the teaching of correct pronunciation and elementary conversation. The Reading Class is wholly devoted to reading and translation.
- (b) The Advanced French and Advanced German Classes are for students who already possess an adequate knowledge of the language.
- (c) EXAMINATIONS. Students are advised to take advantage of the examinations of the Royal Society of Arts in order to obtain certificates of proficiency in languages. The examinations are held in May-June and are arranged in three stages—Elementary, Intermediate and Advanced. Full details may be had from the College Office, and from class-teachers.

LONDON UNIVERSITY EXAMINATIONS.

MATRICULATION. The Third and Fourth Year language classes prepare for the London Matriculation Examination. Students who have not attained this standard should attend the First and Second Year courses in the appropriate language in preparation for admittance to the Third and Fourth Year.

LATIN. A Latin class for beginners is held on Wednesdays. It is intended for students who have no previous knowledge of Latin, but will also serve as a revision course for students with a slight preliminary knowledge.

LATIN II. The Second Year Latin course continues the work of the First Year and is suitable for students who have already acquired the elements of Latin. A substantial part of the course is devoted to the translation of Latin texts.

Intermediate B.A. Courses (Evenings).

Special classes will be held for the Intermediate B.A. Examination of London University provided that sufficient enrolments are forthcoming. Intending students should consult the Organisers of the Liberal Studies Department immediately.

INTER. LATIN. Latin is compulsory at Inter. B.A. standard and a class covering the syllabus of the London Inter. B.A. will be held on Mondays.

SECOND LANGUAGE. A second language is compulsory at Inter. B.A. standard and a third may be offered. Students should choose their second language from English, French, German and Spanish.

LANGUAGE SOCIETIES.

The French Circle.

All past and present students of the College, as well as members of the public, who are interested in any way in France and French, are invited to join the CERCLE which provides opportunities for conversation, debates, lectures, etc., in French. Meetings are held on Friday evenings, whilst there are dramatic and reading sections for members who wish to take advantage of these special sections. Details may be had from the Secretary, French Circle, Technical College.

German Circle.

The German Circle meets on Wednesday evenings and is open to members of the College or of the general public. Application for membership should be made to the Secretary, German Circle, Technical College.

Spanish Society.

This Society meets fortnightly during the College session, on Fridays. Membership is not confined to students of the College, but is open to all who are interested in the language, countries, peoples and literatures of the Spanish-speaking nations, and wish to improve their knowledge through lectures, discussions, conversations, etc. Further information may be obtained from the Secretary, Spanish Society, Technical College.
